

Norm-based exclusions

We screen company holdings and their possible offences/violations against international norms and conventions based on the UN Global Compact's four principle areas of human rights, labor rights, the environment and anti-corruption. The companies below have, according to the fund company's assessment, been confirmed to act in violation of international norms and conventions and are therefore not investable. Please note that this list only includes companies considered to be in violation of international norms and conventions. Handelsbanken Fonder also excludes companies within controversial sectors and fossil fuels.
